

DECLASSIFIED

SUNDAY
AUGUST 9, 1953

No train running this morning, so we all piled into the station wagon with the exception of Peasie, who is leaving this afternoon for London to join her parents at Invermark on August 12 for the grouse shooting. Our baggage will follow some day by trucking service.

We were rather crowded and motored from 10:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. when we reached Paris, with a half-hour off for lunch in a sunny hayfield.

This has been a wonderful vacation.
